

MAY BONUS

Some lawmakers believe that electives like art or music are not necessary to the academic curriculum. Many school systems lose funding every year. Because of this loss in money, some schools must cut certain programs in order to pay for classes that are required. For instance, an elective class may not be available because the school must pay for a math teacher.

Is it important for a school to offer art or music? Why or why not?

be sure to follow all bonus directions