

Caught'ya #6

September 6, 2016

"At least you have some magic, even if it always screws up," Isabelle Ingenuous reminded her friend as she twirled the purple butterfly that perched in her mane of auburn hair. "The rest of us can't even open a classroom portal," she concluded.

Parts of Speech

reminded - action verb

her - pronoun

she - pronoun

purple - adjective

Vocabulary

mane - long hair

portal - opening in a room.

Caught'ya #7

When adverb starts a sentence, put comma behind the
adverb

Suddenly, right in front of this group, stood a tall man who was dressed all in black with a shiny, new, black hat perched on his slick, black hair. He peered down at the group and boomed in a loud, monotone, voice, "Welcome to Horribly Hard Middle School."

Parts of Speech

Vocabulary

suddenly - adverb

group - noun

tall - adjective

man - noun

dressed - action verb

his - pronoun

he - pronoun

boomed - action verb

a - article

means a noun is coming

monotone - single,
unchanging tone

Caught'ya #8

The frightening man then announced that he was the dean of the school, and his name was Dean Dread. Pauline Puerile commenced to snivel (she was such a baby), and Felicia Fey muttered a "cheer-up spell" but only succeeded in frizzing her friend's hair.

Parts of Speech

frightening - adjective
he - pronoun
the - article
Felicia Fey - Proper Noun
succeeded - action verb
her - pronoun

Vocabulary

Dread - to fear greatly Puerile - immature; babyish Commenced - to start
snivel - to weep or cry; whine

Caught'ya #9

When extra information
is in the middle of a sentence, put commas
in front & back of info.

Dean Dread, a disturbing figure in his somber suit and tie, directed the group to go to the "cafetorium," a combination of cafeteria and auditorium. There, the friends found other sixth-graders whom they already knew from elementary school.

Parts of Speech

Vocabulary

disturbing - adjective

the - article

combination - noun

-tion is
a noun
suffix

elementary - adjective

school - noun

somber - gloomy;
depressing

Caught'ya #10

October 13, 2016

"What a bizarre dean," whispered Sam Sagacious sotto voce to William Waggish. "You and I wouldn't want to cross him or meet him in a dark alley."

Parts of Speech

Vocabulary

a - article

bizarre - adjective

dean - noun

whispered - action verb

him - pronoun

dark - adjective

sotto voce - low,

soft voice so as

not to be overheard.